RESUMO

O presente trabalho se propõe a demonstrar a eficiência do modelo matemático desenvolvido por Harry Markowitz na construção de uma carteira eficiente de ativos. Para tanto, será utilizado os dados históricos das ações mais negociadas na bolsa de valores brasileira. Inicialmente será considerada uma carteira de investimentos ingênua que, de acordo com os conceitos do modelo apresentado, se tornará eficiente em termos de risco e retorno. O intuito do trabalho é apresentar uma forma de mitigar o risco em investimentos, criando uma alternativa de aplicação no mercado financeiro em relação aos tradicionais investimentos conservadores.

Palavras-Chave: Carteira eficiente. Harry Markowitz. Risco e retorno. Investimentos.

ABSTRACT

This study aims to demonstrate the efficiency of the mathematical model developed by Harry Markowitz in building an efficient portfolio of assets. For this purpose, will be used the historical of the most traded stocks on the Brazilian stock exchange. Initially it will be considered a simple portfolio of investments, according to the concepts of the model, will become efficient in terms of risk and return. The work order is to present a way to mitigate the risk in investments, creating an alternative to traditional conservative investment.

Keywords: Efficient Portfolio. Harry Markowitz . Risk and return. Investments.

1. INTRODUÇÃO

O cenário que a economia brasileira enfrentou, durante os anos de 2013 e 2014, foi de pressão inflacionária e ao mesmo tempo previsão de baixo crescimento econômico, segundo BACEN (2014), conforme ata do Comitê de Política Monetária, COPOM. Com a finalidade de exercer a política monetária para tal cenário, o COPOM elevou ao longo desse período consideravelmente a taxa básica de juros, Taxa Selic Meta, de 7,25% a.a. para o valor de 11,75% a.a. em dezembro de 2014. Por conta da persistência da inflação e previsão de baixo crescimento econômico ainda no ano de 2015, influenciou a reunião do COPOM de setembro de 2015, de acordo com BACEN (2015), foi elevada novamente a Taxa Selic Meta para 14,25% a.a.

O aumento dos juros causa a redução de liquidez da economia, segundo ASSAF NETO (2012) a política monetária restritiva reduz os meios de pagamento, a demanda agregada e a atividade econômica. Segundo ASSAF NETO (2012), esse movimento pode causar realocação de capital das demais modalidades de investimentos para títulos de renda fixa. O cenário econômico brasileiro estimula a alocação de recursos financeiros em ativos conservadores, a tradição de juros altos atrai os investidores para os fundos de renda fixa ou mesmo a poupança. Contudo, o mercado de capitais oferece modalidades em investimentos que podem gerar maiores retornos e tornar-se uma alternativa aos investimentos conservadores.

Utilizando os instrumentos disponíveis no mercado financeiro e de capitais, as empresas (agentes deficitários) captam recursos por um custo reduzido a formas de financiamentos tradicionais, bem como, os agentes superavitários têm a possibilidade de auferir maiores retornos a manter seus recursos em carteiras definidas por conservadoras. Aplicando a Teoria das Carteiras, os agentes superavitários podem contribuir para o desenvolvimento econômico, e com a ampliação de seus portfólios, receber maiores retornos para um determinado nível de risco aceitável.

O mercado financeiro e de capitais com alto nível de dinamismo é crucial para o desenvolvimento econômico de uma sociedade. Segundo FORTUNA (1998), o mercado financeiro é um importante elemento para o crescimento econômico, pois proporciona o aumento das taxas de poupança e investimento. Segundo PINHEIRO (2009), o mercado de capitais pode gerar desenvolvimento econômico garantindo o fluxo de recursos em condições adequadas e estimulando a poupança privada.

O objetivo do presente trabalho é analisar o efeito da aplicação dos modelos matemáticos de Markowitz, na formação de uma carteira de investimentos eficiente de ações, considerando a rentabilidade histórica dos papéis mais negociados do Índice Bovespa (Ibovespa), bem como verificar a existência de uma carteira otimizada. Será considerando a evolução dos preços das ações das empresas com maior volume de negociação na bolsa de valores no período que compreende aos anos de 2005 até 2015.

Será utilizada no desenvolvimento do trabalho a pesquisa classificada como análise teórica-empírica, uma vez que se baseia em modelo de cálculo, documentações indiretas e pesquisa secundária, como artigos publicados e bibliografias. O principal motivo dessa modalidade de pesquisa é a ampla coleta de dados que a mesma oferece.

2. DESENVOLVIMENTO

2.1. SELEÇÃO DE CARTEIRA

2.1.1. Ativos Financeiros

Ativo financeiro é definido, de acordo com PINHEIRO (2009), por títulos emitidos por agentes econômicos deficitários, os quais são contabilizados no passivo do emissor. Como o exemplo das ações, as quais segundo FORTUNA (1998), são a menor parte do capital social de uma empresa, são emitidas no mercado primário para captação de recursos e negociadas no mercado secundário por meio das bolsas de valores.

2.1.2 Risco

Os investidores são motivados a alocar recursos em determinados ativos ou negócios com objetivo do recebimento do retorno sobre o capital, independente da estratégia adotada. O retorno pode ser definido, de acordo com REILLY (2008), pela soma do total de rendimentos e variação dos preços dos ativos em determinado período de tempo. No desenvolvimento do presente trabalho, serão consideradas as taxas históricas de retorno dos ativos, inicialmente de forma individual, no período que compreende os últimos cinco anos.

A definição de risco em investimentos financeiros poderá ser considerada como a incerteza em alcançar um retorno esperado em determinado período de tempo, para Reilly “o risco decorre da volatilidade esperada dos retornos dos ativos no tempo” (REILLY, 2008, p.24).

O risco pode ser dividido, de acordo com sua classificação e fonte, entre risco sistemático e risco não sistemático. O risco sistemático está relacionado por alterações nas variáveis macroeconômicas, de forma que todo o sistema financeiro é atingido. Os exemplos de risco sistemático, segundo REILLY (2008), são taxa de juros, crescimento econômico, políticas fiscais, monetárias, variações na taxa de câmbio e eventos militares.

O risco não sistemático, também denominado risco específico, pode ser definido por possíveis variações de um tipo de ativo específico, são considerando as variáveis econômicas como um todo. De acordo com REILLY (2008), são exemplos de risco não sistemático os diversos resultados gerados dentro de uma empresa por conta das decisões gerenciais. A diversificação permite minimizar o risco não sistemático ou específico, pois, a queda no preço de um ativo da carteira poderá ser compensado por resultados positivos nos demais ativos com compõe a carteira de investimentos.

Para mensurar o nível de risco dos ativos, também chamado de volatilidade, serão utilizados os conceitos de variância, desvio padrão e coeficiente de variação.

A relação de risco versus retorno entre ativos financeiros leva em consideração o nível de risco que o investidor está sujeito a correr e o retorno esperado a receber em um período de tempo. A partir dos apontamentos de ABREU (2014, p. 110):

“Considerando que os investidores são racionais, concluímos que os mesmos só estarão dispostos a correrem maior risco em uma aplicação financeira para ir em busca de maiores retornos. Segundo o princípio da dominância, entre dois investimentos de mesmo retorno, o investidor prefere o de menor risco e entre dois investimentos de mesmo risco, o investidor prefere o de maior rentabilidade.”

2.1.3 Modelo e Markowitz

O modelo inicial desenvolvido por Harry Markowitz no ano de 1952, com a publicação do artigo Portfolio Selection, demonstra, segundo BODIE (2000), a importância da diversificação dos investimentos, bem como a metodologia para diversificar por meio de uma taxa de retorno esperada e uma medida de risco para uma carteira de investimentos, considerando a racionalidade dos investidores quanto a maximização dos retornos e exposição a menores riscos possíveis. A medida de risco utilizada por Markowitz foi a variância, pois, segundo REILLY (2008), presumiu ser uma medida adequada de risco.

São utilizados três passos para o entendimento da seleção da carteira maximizada de acordo os princípios de Markowitz. Segundo BODIE (2000), a primeira etapa é identificar a melhor combinação entre o risco e retorno, a segunda parte é definir a carteira ótima de acordo com a linha de alocação de capital mais íngreme do gráfico, a terceira parte consiste em escolher a carteira mais apropriada de acordo com o risco, dado os ativos envolvidos.

Segundo Markowitz (1952 apud GONÇAVES JR et al., 2002), o risco de uma carteira é calculado de acordo com os retornos esperados de cada ativo combinado com a respectiva variância de forma individual e covariância dos diversos pares de ativos. A compilação dos dados dará origem a fronteira eficiente dos ativos de risco, essa é explicada pela melhor carteira possível em termos de retorno esperado dado o desvio padrão. Basicamente o modelo de Markowitz é descrito pelos cálculos do retorno esperado da carteira, variância da carteira, participação de cada ativo e retorno esperado de cada ativo (FIGURA 1).

FIGURA 1 – MODELO BÁSICO DE MARKOWITZ.

$$E = \sum_{i=1}^n X_i \mu_i$$

$$V = \sum_{i=1}^n \sum_{j=1}^n X_i X_j \sigma_{ij}$$

$$\sum_{i=1}^n X_i = 1$$

$$X_i \geq 0$$

FONTE: GONÇALVES JR et al. (2002)

A escolha da carteira ótima é realizada com a comparação do retorno esperado e desvio-padrão as várias carteiras formadas no gráfico. A carteira ótima é o ponto em que a linha alocação de capital tangencia a fronteira eficiente dos ativos de risco do gráfico. A escolha da carteira apropriada ocorre com a definição dentre as possíveis combinações oferecidas pela carteira ótima, as quais irão oferecer diferentes retornos para cada nível de risco.

2.2. METODOLOGIA

No presente trabalho serão analisadas as dez ações mais negociadas na bolsa de valores brasileira, BMF&Bovespa, do dia 11 de setembro de 2015, de acordo com a composição teórica da carteira do Índice Bovespa (Ibovespa) do período de setembro a dezembro de 2015.

O critério de definição das ações é a participação percentual na composição do índice de diferentes empresas, de forma decrescente, com histórico mínimo de cinco anos de cotação diária em bolsa, desconsiderando a ação de menor participação em caso de papéis da mesma empresa.

As ações negociadas em bolsa das empresas selecionadas, de acordo com os critérios acima definidos, foram: Itaú Unibanco (ITUB4), Bradesco (BBDC4), Brasil Foods (BRFS3), Petrobras (PETR4), Vale (VALE5), JBS (JBSS3), Cielo (CIEL3), Itausa (ITSA4), Embraer (EMBR4) e BM&FBOVESPA (BVMF3). No período, as ações selecionadas participaram com 43,09% da composição teórica da carteira.

Os preços diários, origem da análise das carteiras, foram obtidos no portal ADVFN. Tais informações foram base para os cálculos dos retornos diários de cada ação (APÊNDICE 1).

A análise inicia com os resultados de risco e retorno de uma carteira ingênua de investimentos, quando os pesos são distribuídos de forma proporcional ao número de ativos. De acordo com BODIE (2000), a definição da carteira provém da aversão a riscos do investidor, pois investirá dentro da linha de alocação desejada para auferir certo retorno a um risco aceitável. No presente trabalho, será considerado como risco aceitável o risco da carteira ingênua, dessa forma, os pesos dos ativos serão alterados a fim de conferir o maior retorno possível em uma carteira maximizada. Para a realização dos cálculos do modelo, será utilizado o programa Excel 2013, da Microsoft, por meio de planilhas.

De acordo com o período e ações selecionadas, os cálculos iniciam com a rentabilidade diária, retorno esperado e desvio padrão de cada ativo utilizando as respectivas funções do Excel LN, MÉDIA, DESVPAD. Posteriormente é calculado a variação individual de cada ativo, utilizando a função VARP. A matriz de correlação dos pares de ativos é obtida a partir da variação individual dos ativos, utilizando a ferramenta de análise de dados do Excel. O risco da carteira é calculado com a função SOMARPRODUTO, que relaciona a matriz de covariância e variância dos ativos. Utiliza-se a mesma função para cálculo do retorno, relacionando o retorno esperado com a ponderação percentual de cada ativo que compõe a carteira.

A otimização da carteira é realizada com a ferramenta SOLVER do Excel, a qual permite atribuir os pesos dos ativos na ponderação de uma carteira eficiente, a ferramenta considera o risco e o retorno de cada ativo na composição da carteira.

3. APLICAÇÃO DO MODELO

3.1. RISCO E RETORNO

De acordo com a cotação diária de fechamento das ações selecionadas foi calculado a rentabilidade diária de cada ativo (APÊNDICE 1). Utilizando o desvio padrão e a média, foi possível obter o risco e o retorno esperado, respectivamente (TABELA1).

3.2. MATRIZ DE COVARIÂNCIA

A covariância, de acordo REILLY (2008), é uma medida que relaciona o grau de movimento entre dois ativos em torno de seus valores médios no período. A tabela 2 demonstra a matriz de covariância de cada par de ativo da carteira, calculados de acordo com os retornos individuais (TABELA 2).

3.3 CARTEIRA INGENUA

O cálculo do risco e retorno da carteira foi baseado na distribuição percentual ponderada ao número de ações, sendo atribuído o peso de 10% para cada ativo, conforme representado na tabela abaixo.

Os resultados de risco e retorno do total da carteira, calculado utilizando a ferramenta SOLVER do Excel, foi de 1.4606% e -0,0030%, respectivamente.

3.4 FRONTEIRA EFICIENTE

No gráfico, é demonstrado os possíveis portfólios que um investidor pode formar utilizando os ativos selecionados no presente trabalho. Abaixo da curva percebida no gráfico 2, existem diversas combinações de ativos que formam distintas carteiras de investimentos. Entretanto, as combinações eficientes, considerando as distintas variâncias, estão localizadas sobre a curva do gráfico.

O gráfico foi obtido a partir de diferentes ponderações de ativos selecionados com os modelos matemáticos descritos no presente trabalho. De acordo com REILLY (2008), a curva da fronteira eficiente representa a rentabilidade máxima dado um determinado nível de risco, em outras palavras, o risco mínimo para cada rentabilidade obtida (FIGURA 2).

FONTE: ELABORAÇÃO PRÓPRIA

3.5 CARTEIRA EFICIENTE

A carteira ingênua pode ser observada no gráfico da FIGURA 2, é ilustrada pelo ponto localizado fora da curva da fronteira eficiente das carteiras, com retorno negativo de 0,0030% e risco observado de 1,4606%. A definição da carteira eficiente com retorno maximizado se deu pela fixação do risco da carteira ingênua, considerando como risco aceitável. Dessa forma, o portfólio localizado sobre a curva do gráfico (FIGURA 2) apresentou o retorno de 0,0762% para o mesmo período. O resultado observado com a aplicação do modelo matemático otimizou o resultado inicialmente obtido com a carteira ingênua (TABELA 3).

FORNE: ELABORAÇÃO PRÓPRIA

A diversificação é efetiva quando o portfólio de investimentos agrupa ativos com a menor correlação possível. Supondo o agrupamento de ativos com retornos perfeitamente correlacionados, o risco (desvio padrão) seria proporcionalmente igual aos resultados dos ativos isolados, nesse caso, o risco não seria minimizado. Conforme cita GONÇALVES JR et al. (2002, p.4):

“De acordo com o modelo de Markowitz a variância da carteira depende da covariância entre os pares de ativos, a qual por sua vez depende da correlação entre os ativos. Assim, quando dois ou mais ativos pouco relacionados compõem uma carteira de investimentos consegue-se um risco menor que a média ponderada dos riscos individuais, conseguindo algumas vezes um risco menor que o do ativo de menor risco com um retorno maior que o deste ativo.”

A carteira eficiente ponderou da melhor forma possível os percentuais de cada ativo. O investidor saiu de uma rentabilidade negativa para uma carteira com rentabilidade substancialmente maior, assumindo o mesmo risco.

4. CONCLUSÕES

O presente trabalho demonstrou que a estruturação de uma carteira teórica com base nos princípios da Teoria Moderna de Carteira de Markowitz é eficiente. A combinação entre ativos de renda variável em uma carteira, com seus resultados individuais de desvio padrão e rentabilidade, é mais eficiente em termos de rentabilidade assumindo ao mesmo tempo uma posição de igual ou menor risco.

Foi considerado inicialmente o resultado de desvio padrão e retorno esperado de carteira ingênua, tais resultados foram base na definição do portfólio eficiente de investimentos, o qual maximizou o retorno dado o mesmo risco. Com isso, pode-se considerar que a diversificação em investimentos é efetiva, e pode ser aplicada na composição de uma carteira que engloba diferentes modalidades como fundos de renda fixa, multimercados, cambiais e ações, maximizando o retorno dentro de um determinado risco aceitável pelo investidor.
